

Successful Commercial Law Firm Lewis Silkin Installs LexisCheck Monitor for Microsoft SharePoint

Lewis Silkin mitigates risk by implementing the latest automated citation checking software from LexisNexis

LONDON, May 13 2011 – LexisNexis UK, a leading provider of legal information services, today announced that Lewis Silkin, the full-service city law firm, has selected Lexis[®]Check Monitor as part of its information strategy. LexisCheck Monitor integrates seamlessly with Microsoft SharePoint to analyse and monitor internal documents for changes in the law. Alerts are received immediately following any changes, and reports are produced showing the impact of these changes.

Using LexisCheck Monitor, Lewis Silkin can monitor any documents they choose, enabling their lawyers, PSLs and information professionals to monitor different sets of documents and receive individual alerts on the status of citations, increasing accuracy and reducing the opportunity for error.

Penny Newman, Director of People and Knowledge at Lewis Silkin, commented: “Installing LexisCheck Monitor into our SharePoint sites ensures all of our knowhow documents, precedents and client documents are constantly monitored for out-of-date citations. This helps us increase our efficiency as a firm, mitigate risk and identify client development opportunities.”

Tim Hawkins, Content and Customer operations director, LexisNexis UK, added: “It is great to be able to work with such a successful city law firm as Lewis Silkin and really add value to their business. LexisCheck Monitor is an excellent addition to any law firm, large or small. The ability to automate citation checking not only saves fee earners valuable time but also provides them with the confidence of knowing they have delivered advice of the best quality to their clients.”
